Incight announces the opening of its second office in Palm Desert, California. Incight is a nonprofit that offers scholarships, internships and mentors to college students with disabilities.

Incight has announced the opening of its second office located Palm Desert, California. The Portland Oregon based organization serves full time students enrolled in a post secondary education. Incight's mission is to educate and employ people with disabilities. Incight's vision is to change two national statistics; only 1 in 5 people with disabilities are employed full time and only 16% complete college.

After a student becomes an Incight scholar, Incight's state of the art program offers them an, eMentor and summer internship opportunities in the field of the scholar's academic or personal interest.

We are proud to announce that the Palm Desert office is headed by the 2006 National Student Assistance Professional of the year, Jim Rothblatt, a recently retired high school counselor at Palm Desert High School. Incight's Board Chair and one of the founders, Mr. Vail Horton, knows of Mr. Rothblatt's expertise in helping students reach beyond expectations, because he was a recipient of Jim Rothblatt's counsel.

For the 2008–2009 school year Incight plans to offer a total of 100 scholarships, 20 of which are scheduled to support students from the Palm Desert region.

Further information on scholarships can be found on Incight's web page www.incight.org.
